

ALEXANDRIA.

MONDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 25.

AT A Confederate reunion in South Carolina last week Senator Butler expressed his opinion very plainly of those ex Confederates who lick the hands of their conquerors for crumbs, and of the G. A. R., who refuse to let monuments mark the spots to which the Confederates advanced at the battle of Gettysburg. The New York Herald, alluding to the Senator's speech, says:

"The man who by deed or word stirs up the bad blood which has been cooling for twenty five years, or for the sake of some petty personal gain seeks to rehabilitate the animosities of other days, is false to the cause of liberty and progress."

When such talk is uttered by a gentleman who sits in the Senate, whose special business it is to heal old wounds, to help the people everywhere to bury their dead hatreds, and, standing shoulder to shoulder, face a glorious future, it is something to be deplored by all sections of our common country."

And yet, from the time gentlemen from the South were readmitted to the U. S. Senate down to the present, there has hardly been a month during any session of Congress in which some northern republican Senator has not, by deed or word, manifested the bad blood of his section, and stirred up that of the South. The bad blood that Senator Butler may have stirred up in South Carolina last week is as nothing compared with that which is being continually stirred up in both sections of the country by the speeches of Senators Hoar, Dawes, Ingalls, Edmunds, Sherman and others of his South hating senatorial colleagues.

THE RICHMOND Dispatch says Governor Lee's forthcoming message will doubtless show that the condition of the State debt, nor any other cause, is keeping capital out of Virginia, or words to that effect. If that be so, the Governor is a wizard, for the experience of most, if not all, men who have tried the experiment is to the effect that attempts to borrow money in Washington or New York on real estate in Virginia, even the most valuable, result in failure, while little or no difficulty is experienced in raising it on lands in Maryland or any other State. The Dispatch also says that in any possible future attempt to settle the State debt, if the object be to attract capital, taxes must not be raised. No body, so far as heard from, proposes to raise the taxes on real estate, nor, as understood, do the creditors ask that such taxes shall be raised. The money that is now thrown away in the vain effort to repudiate the debt, a higher liquor license, a tax on bank paper, and the saving in criminal expenses to be effected by a return to the whipping post, would supply not only all the money the creditors ask for the interest on their bonds, but also a large sinking fund for the payment of the principal.

MR. GEORGE TICKNOR CURTIS, who professes to be a democrat, says:

"The question of the constitutional power of Congress, in laying duties on foreign products, to discriminate in favor of our own industries, is not one that can now be subjected to a judicial determination. It must always be determined by the legislative power, and the legislation is always what a majority of the people of the United States choose to have it."

Mr. Ticknor's effrontery almost equals that of General Mahone, who said he was a better democrat than Ben Hill, and, immediately thereafter, by his own one single vote, turned the U. S. Senate over to the control of the republicans. A simple majority of the voters of the country, and that majority obtained by the solid vote of some millions of recently emancipated and ignorant negroes, and not the U. S. Supreme Court, to decide upon the constitutionality of the laws of Congress! And, stranger of all, the man who says this calls himself a democrat.

MR. HART, 31 auditor of the U. S. Treasury Department, has written a letter to Governor Lee, telling him that he thinks the State of Virginia ought to refund a certain sum of money, alleged to have been overpaid her when Mr. Pierpont was called her Governor. As previously demonstrated by the GAZETTE, the State of Virginia never asked for, never received, nor ever repaid for any such money as that referred to. Mr. Pierpont may have received it. If so, he should be made to refund it. But if it were otherwise, and if Virginia had received it, it would only be a small part of the money the national government owes her for the advances she made to erect the first public buildings in Washington and to defend the country in the war of 1812.

FROM THE evident intention of the small republican majority in the U. S. House of Representatives to attempt to ride roughshod over the large democratic minority in that body, and the equally evident intention of the latter to resist that revolutionary attempt to the utmost extent of their power, it would not be at all surprising if the organization of the House be not only long delayed, but if it be attended with the most exciting scenes.

THE DEATH of Hon. Geo. H. Pendleton, of Ohio, at Brussels, where he was sojourning, is announced by telegraph. His health had been failing for some time. Mr. Pendleton had served in both branches of Congress, and was the author of the civil service law. He was Minister to Germany under the Cleveland administration.

FROM WASHINGTON.

(Special Correspondence of the Alexs. Gazette) WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 25, 1889.

A large delegation of the Young Men's Republican Club of Baltimore, headed by Gen. King and Mr. Brown, numbering about one hundred, arrived here to-day and called upon the President and Postmaster General Wanamaker in the interest of Mr. Johnson, a candidate for postmaster of that city. It is not supposed they will succeed in their object, as Mr. Stockbridge, the republican Congressman from that district, has recommended another man. The President insisted the last republican delegation from Baltimore that called upon him by stopping their spokesman almost at the beginning of his address and telling them it would be impossible for him to recollect what they might intend to say.

Congressman Bowden, of Virginia, was at the Capitol to-day. He says he understands the President will continue in the future as in the past to recognize General Mahone as the head of the republican party in Virginia. Mr. Agnew, of Alexandria, also here to-day, says that his information on the subject is to the same effect.

It is understood that lawyer Chandler, who left here a year or two ago to accept the position of chief counsel for a railroad company in St. Louis, will return here, as his present field is too small for him.

The republicans in charge of the Pan American Congress have played the members of that congress for all they were worth as an advertising medium. In the first place they were made to advertise a carriage manufacturing in Ohio, then Postmaster General Wanamaker's store in Philadelphia, and last, the product of a wine maker in California.

The following changes in the 4th class postoffices of Virginia were made to-day: Camp, Smyth county, C. L. Jennings, appointed postmaster, vice T. M. Horne, resigned; Garfield, Fairfax county, Nanette B. Grehan, vice Silas Devers, resigned; Holstein Mills, Smyth county, Sarah E. Carrio, vice E. M. Worden, removed; Riceville, Pittsylvania county, J. W. Douglas, vice A. N. Ferguson, resigned; Soudan, Mecklenburg county, P. S. Grigg, vice H. W. Bouldin, resigned.

Representatives Mills, Hooker, McRae, Brown, and other democrats, meeting by chance at the Capitol this morning, held an informal conference in the House lobby at which it was determined, that as the republicans had issued a call for a caucus to be held in the hall of the House on Saturday next, and as that caucus might possibly be prolonged, owing to the squabble for the offices of the House, and the democrats thereby be prevented from using that hall for their caucus previous to the meeting of the House unless it be held before Saturday, it should be held on Friday night, and issued a call for that purpose. The only thing that will probably be done by their caucus will be to compliment the present officers of the House by unanimously renominating them.

It was ascertained to-day that Mr. Reed will receive the vote of the solid republican delegation from New York for Speaker. It has been thought that two of that delegation were opposed to him, but assurances were received from both of them to-day that they, too, would be in line. As the time for the nomination approaches, it looks more and more as if Mr. Reed would be successful.

Many inquiries have been made here yesterday and to-day for General Mahone, who was expected here last Saturday from New York, but up to noon today he had not arrived.

It seems that the only subordinates who will be removed for having had their pensions reduced, are the unfortunate few who are democrats.

It is understood that the project for the establishment of a rotary savings bank will be pushed at the coming session of Congress.

A movement is on foot here for a grand boulevard from this city to Baltimore.

A deed of trust from the Richmond & Danville R. R. Co. to the Central Trust Company of New York was recorded in Pittsylvania county last week. The deed conveys all the property of the road to secure certain millions of dollars worth of bonds issued to the Trust Company. This money will be used in improving the rolling stock of the road, providing better cars and faster and more perfect engines.

In the U. S. Court at Danville on Saturday, Judge Paul said he suspected from the large number of trivial cases coming before the court that some of the United States commissioners were hatching up these cases for the fees they got. He said he would investigate the matter thoroughly in order to satisfy himself, and if he discovered that such things had been done he would reform the abuse if he had to remove every commissioner in the district.

An engineer corps, with headquarters at Luray, is now engaged making preliminary surveys across the Blue Ridge in Page county for the proposed railroad to run from there to Washington city. It is thought the road will cross the Ridge through Benham's Gap, five or six miles distant from Luray. It is believed that capitalists connected with the Norfolk and Western railroad are having the surveys made, and that the new road will be built at an early day.

At a reunion of survivors of the 10th South Carolina Confederate Regiment on Friday, Senator Butler delivered an oration in which he reentered the aspersions still cast upon certain quarters upon the men who were the grey. He defended the motives and principles of the Confederates shown in several instances. Southerners were willing to accept the situation with good grace and he thought northerners should do the same.

Lynched.

Robert Bland, who, on Thursday last, attempted to commit a criminal assault on Miss Annie Gee, aged sixteen, in Prince George county, a short distance from Disputanta station, was taken from the jail of Prince George county Saturday and lynched. A mob, consisting of forty mounted well masked, went to the residence of Henry King, the negro jailer, and demanded the keys of the jail. He slowly refused to surrender the keys or go to the jail and unlock the door. The mob then burst open the doors of the jailer's house, and again demanded the keys. On refusing to give them up, they placed a rope around his neck and dragged him to the jail, several hundred yards from the house. Just before the jail was reached the keys were heard rattling in King's pocket. The mob then took the keys from him and carried him into the jail and made him lead the way to the cell in which Bland was confined. Bland had nothing to say when the lynchers came to the cell. He was tied hand and foot and carried off about seventy-five yards from the jail, where he was swung up by a rope to the branch of a tree. He begged piteously for his life, but the lynchers were deaf to his appeals for mercy. His body was riddled with bullets and left dangling from the tree. Bland was about twenty years of age, and a worthless character. He was arrested Thursday night by a posse of men who went in pursuit of him, and he had been sent on by Magistrate S. S. Austin for trial at the December term of the County Court. It is stated that at the examining trial Bland said that he had had an eye on Miss Bland for a long time. Some of the friends and relatives of the young lady were present at the time, and it was with difficulty that they could restrain themselves from doing violence to the negro then and there.

The New York Tragedy.

The body of Stephen Pettus, who was shot and killed in New York on Friday last by Mrs. Southworth, was embalmed, and sent on Saturday for burial to Clarksville, Tenn., where he was born. He married Miss Mildred C. Elliott, daughter of William H. Elliott, a wealthy farmer. The brothers of Mrs. Southworth promise that the murder will be followed by a complete exposure of the circumstances in the life of her victim that in their opinion justify her terrible crime. Her lawyers consider it best to defer the exposure until it is called for in court. If what they allege be true, the public will have to face the dirty details of a shameful scandal. The brother says: "We will defend her to the fullest extent of our means, and they are ample for the purpose. Nothing will be left undone by Mrs. Southworth's five brothers and other relatives, to aid her in the present trouble."

Gentlemen need not wear gloves at dinner parties, that is, if they do not have clean ones; but under all circumstances they must take Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup when they get a cold or a sore throat.

ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES.

Bold Train Robbery.

OSWEGO, Kan., Nov. 25.—The Missouri, Kansas and Texas Express train, north bound, for St. Louis, was held up on Pryor Creek, near Perry station last night, and the express car robbed of about $50,000. The road agents were only two in number. They had concealed themselves in a clump of bushes near the water tank on Pryor Creek and when the train stopped for water they boarded the engine, one on either side and covering the astounded engineer and fireman with their revolvers explained to them their design of robbing the train. One of the robbers climbed into the tender and from that point of vantage was master of the engine. The men in the cab were at his mercy and were compelled to obey his command. The other robber in the meantime had gone back to the express car and uncoupled it from the rest of the train. Entering the car he intimidated the express messenger by presenting a brace of revolvers at his head and ordering him to disarm himself. The messenger obeyed and the robber possessed himself of the messenger's weapons and then through the window called to his confederate in the tender: "All right; let her go." The latter repeated the command to the engineer who had nothing to do but obey. He opened the throttle and the engine and express car sped away from the train. Meanwhile the robber in the express car had not been idle. He compelled the messenger to open the safe by a threat of death and to transfer the safe's contents to a large gummy sack which the robber had brought along to convey the booty in. The messenger again obeyed. The robber then made a hasty examination of the car to see that nothing valuable was overlooked, and giving a signal to his confederate the latter ordered the engineer to slack up. This done, the robbers disembarked and escaped in the darkness. All this was done so quickly that the engine had proceeded only a mile and a half from Pryor Creek, and the robbers had completed the robbery and effected their escape before the surprised trainmen knew what had occurred. No attempt was made to pursue the road agents and the engineer ran back to the creek, picked up his train and pursued his trip. It is thought that they are the same men who committed the robbery last night, although nothing definite is known as to their identity.

Stanley.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—A letter has been received from Henry M. Stanley, dated South End, Victoria, Nyanza, Sept. 3, from which it is learned that, tempted by their extreme wretchedness and misery, Emin's followers sold their rifles and ammunition to their enemies, rebelled against Emin, quarrelled and killed one another; details of the Mahdist attack on Emin and their defeat, and the final union with Stanley. Stanley had been at the point of death from a dreadful illness, and for twenty-eight days he lay helpless. Regaining strength he finally gave orders for the march home. Many discoveries in that wonderful region were made until at last the party came to a church whose cross dominated a Christian settlement, and they knew they had reached "the outskirts of blessed civilization."

Arrested for Robbing a Bank.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 25.—The arrest of Assistant Cashier Perrin, of the Iron Exchange Bank of Hurley, together with a woman and a man named Baker, charged with complicity in the bank robbery, has caused a great sensation. The money was intended to pay off the employees of the Germania and Ashland mining companies and had been shipped from Ashland by the United States Express Company. Detectives have had the matter in charge and they think some one connected with the bank committed the robbery.

The people are intensely excited and another accident, such as the killing of the horse Friday, will lead to an open assault upon the heavily charged electric wires. Great crowds congregated on the streets and cheered the linemen as wire after wire was chopped down and destroyed.

[COMMUNICATED.]

DR. M. M. LEWIS MEMORIAL WARD.—The ladies having in charge the oyster supper given last week for the purpose of obtaining funds with which to furnish a surgical ward in the Alexandria Infirmary, dedicated to the memory of Dr. Lewis, desire to tender their warmest thanks to the ladies and gentlemen who so cordially and liberally aided in this most laudable object. We cannot particularize, but we hope our thanks will be accepted as if emphasized to each personally. The proceeds netted something over $60, which sum, considering the excessively rainy and depressing weather, was very gratifying to the management; additionally so as an exemplification of the fact that the elements cannot extinguish the loving remembrance for one whose name and virtues they desire to perpetuate. Suitable furniture will be purchased as soon as practicable and be placed in the rooms, making the ward cheerful and comfortable, creditable alike to the projectors and to an Alexandria institution.

SECRETARY.

THE EXPENSES of the Brazilian government last year, under the reign of an emperor, were less than seventy five million dollars. If they be not double that amount during the next year—if the republic shall last that long—the Brazilian tax-payers will have good cause to thank their stars. Revolutionists who have no cause of complaint are patriots for revenue only.

FOOLISH as the Brazilian revolutionists may be, they are at least wise enough to put an educational restriction upon the privilege of suffrage; and in that respect are wiser than their especial friends in this country, who imposed no such requisite restriction upon the emancipated slaves here.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The new week on the Stock Exchange opened with a moderately active market, in which the trusts and a few of the specialties were the most conspicuous features, accompanied by a heavy to weak tone. First prices were generally slightly higher than Saturday's, final figures, the advances extending to 3/4. The Chesapeake and Ohio stocks, which had opened up, were all fractionally lower at the end of the hour, but no other movements of importance were made except a drop of 1/4 in Richmond and West Point in the last portion of the hour to 21 1/2. At 11 o'clock the market was fairly active and heavy to weak at the lowest prices reached. Money 5/16.
